SATURDAY, May 25-6 P. M. SATURDAY, May 25—6 P. M.
The railway share market has fluctuated feverishly today, and it closes without substantial improvement.
The brokers and other professional speculators are for the most part still on the bear side, and they point to their best friend, the Secretary of the Treasury, for proof of the soundness of their position. "Mr. McCulloch's policy" is a favorite phrase with them, and there is no doubt that the depression which that policy, such as it is, has brought upon the country, has creatly aided them ght upon the country, has greatly aided them g the present condition of affairs. Had it for the undue contraction of the curprosperity of the country would have check, and the rovenue would not have exhe decline that it has. San Francisco papers of April 30 report:-The aggregate shipment of specie since January has been about the same as last year. It is to be remembered, however, that the gold shipment has been very much less, since the proportion of silver has considerably increased. This, at current rates of stering exchange in New York and China relatively to the price of silver in London, pays as well as merchandise. Gold is, in fact, the only money element, since it is from that the legal tender coin alone is produced, and the export of that article has in the month of April been less than the value of wheat exported. That is to say, the amount of bills furnished by grain for the last three steamers has been nearly as much as that furnished by gold. This is a remarkable fact, presenting altogether a new feature in this market. The aggregate exports of specie and merchandise since January 1 has been as follows, including amounts of coin paid in for duties.

The German Radical Republican Central Organization held a special meeting on last Friday evening, when a very animated discussion snued in reference to certain resolutions introduced at a previous meeting by Mr. Hugo Westendonck. The committee to whom these resolutions had been referred recommended their adoption. These resolutions, which after a long debate were adopted, define the position of the German republicans towards the republican party and the policy they intend to pursue at the next election with reference to the Sunday clause of the Excise law, which by its provisions prohibits the sale of liquor on Sunday and authorizes the police to make arrests for alleged violations of it without a warrant of law, is characterized as despotte, illiberal and anti-republican.

The resolutions are in substance as follows:—That the republican members of the State Convention, the Republican German Republican Countral tommittee cannot recommend to vote at the next fail elections for candidates of the republican party does not pladge the republicane members of the State Convention, or the aforesaid candidates, to further the repeal of the aforesaid provisions of the Excise law, either by the Legislature or by an amoadment to the State constitution.

Messrs. Hugo Wesendonck, Richard, Hermann Raster, Kapp, Dr. Gerke, R. Weil and P. Cook, were appointed a committees with the action thus taken.

The German republicans of the State are to be called upon to take similar action in reference to this matter.

We have no interest in this matter beyond a prope-of city pride, or beyond our share of duty as an indep-journalist, to protect the city's rights and dignity, lieve that a submission to despottem, in any form, has jurious effect upon the public morals; and we believe that the state of terror to which the Commissioner succeeded in reducing these men of "good man," has clective—are the best judges of the wisness and recilities people in regard to local statutes. The New Judges have been much sneered at and condemned by low reasoners for the course they took last summer in to the Excise Law, but they looked at that law in a and a better light than did the Court of Appeals. The test of the local laws passed general Legislature are presumed to be made interest and by the direction of the majority of the munity upon which they are to be imposed. Ou judges recognized, consequently, a certain quight, on the part of the community, to pass these laws; and either to ratify them by acquiescence, as is the case with our market laws, o peat them, in a certain sense, by giving them no heat the case of rockets and firearms on the Fourth of This is the way in which laws are locally repealed or absolute, and the custom proceeds from that reserve of repeal which is always retained by the covereigness when their deputies, in legislature, have make the theory of the process of the passes of the passes of the first sotion they took against the Excise law knew it to be unconstitutional in the city of New Yocause levelled against the washes of its majority, this point of view, though reasolible consulting time. which the New York courts and magistracy recognize the first action they took against the Excise law knew it to be unconstitutional in the city of New York and the point of view, though possibly consulting their electoral chances, they proved themselves the defenders of the city's rights. Had they otherwise they would have been unworthy of sixtions and of the community which had abthem to understand its privileges. The Court of App may not recognize this principle, but governments deparmitting distanterful laws to fail into disues and to becobsolets.
